Kamakura carving

Discover the 800-year-old art of traditional Zen Buddhist lacquer-wood carvings and crafts

Kamakura-bori is a delicate school of wood-working which originated with the intricate altars of the ancient Zen Buddhist temples. Nowadays, the style is celebrated as part of Kanagawa's rich cultural and artistic history.

You can turn your own hand to this splendid 800-year-old tradition at a modern-day workshop – and perhaps even craft a family treasure of your own.

Exclusive special offer | Kamakura carving workshop with a master craftsman

Under the tutelage of master craftsmen working in the Kamakura tradition, you will learn to carve trays, dishes and plates – and help preserve a local art form.

Your creation will then undergo the lacquering process, and will be shipped to your home (taking around four months). Bespoke designs are also available for those who have been particularly charmed by Kamakura-bori.

■ Duration: Around 60 minutes, negotiable upon request.
